Friday Health Plans is purpose-built specifically for people and who buy their own health insurance. The company focuses on overall simplicity to offer affordable health plans with benefits that help members stay healthy and cover them if they get sick or hurt. Operational efficiency, top-notch customer service, and smart technology are core to Friday's consumer-centric approach. The company is headquartered in Denver, with its core operations and customer service centers in Alamosa and Pueblo, Colorado.

Company Background

Friday Health Plans was started in 2015 after the passage of the Affordable Care Act. People like independent consultants, freelance pros, tradespeople, and service industry workers who were suddenly in the market for a health plan that was affordable and offered benefits that were actually meaningful. And that new healthcare consumer market was just the spark Friday Health Plans needed to launch its customercentric, wallet-friendly model.

Friday Health Plans currently serves members in Colorado, Georgia, Nevada, North Carolina, and Oklahoma.

Insurance Products

Friday Health Plans' products are designed with simplicity and affordability in mind for people who buy their own health insurance. Plans are offered in bronze, silver, gold and catastrophic categories. They include benefits that encourage members to see providers, such as unlimited $0 primary care visits and mental health visits, thousands of $0 preferred generic drugs, $0 telehealth visits— all before the deductible. Friday offers similar plans to small businesses as well. All products are compliant with the Affordable Care Act and are regulated by individual states' divisions of insurance. Plans are offered on and off the health insurance marketplace, through licensed brokers, and through the Friday Health Plans website.

Why Work with Friday
